

The Red Book Lectures

Lance S. Owens

There are two sets of audio lectures available (in mp3 audio format), all recorded during the original presentations. These are free online, and have been downloaded thousands of times over the last few years.

The first series of four lectures was presented at Westminster College in January and February of 2010, shortly after the Red Book was published. The short series provides a useful introduction to Jung and his Red Book (Liber Novus).

The second series of seven seminar evenings – with a total of fourteen lectures – was presented at Westminster College from September 2011 to May 2012. The seminar group was composed mostly of psychologists in clinical practice. This is a much more in-depth consideration and reading of the Red Book, and reflects an additional two years of my own deepening study of the text.

Each of the lectures runs between about 70 and 90 minutes. It is my hope that you will find them useful.

Click here to go to the lecture page

For a brief introduction to Jung's Red Book, see the encyclopedia article on "C. G. Jung and the Red Book" authored by Lance Owens and Stephan Hoeller for the Encyclopedia of Psychology and Religion, 2nd ed., Springer Publications, 2014.

Click here to view the encyclopedia article.